

AVERT Family Violence Training

In Perth 2012

Presented by

Applecross Training*

- Family Violence is everyone's business. With one in four Australian families experiencing Family Violence, all professionals in the helping professions, from counsellors and psychologists to lawyers in family court will encounter family violence in their work
- The AVERT Family Violence training package was produced by the Australian Attorney-General's department to meet the needs of professionals working with Family violence and to promote a more collaborative response.
- The AVERT Training Package is up-to-date and relevant drawing on the experience and opinions of Australia's leading experts in Family Violence.
- Applecross Training is bringing the AVERT training to Perth for 2012. The training package comprises 5 workshops of either one or two days. Attend the workshops of relevance to you with generous discounts available for students and those attending all five workshops

Presenter: Kevin Hanavan

Kevin Hanavan is a registered psychologist who specialises in domestic violence. He has worked running groups for perpetrators of family and domestic violence as well as working with men individually. Kevin also has experience in working with women who have experienced family and domestic violence. Kevin's early work was in the field of homeless young people and adolescents at risk of homelessness. In this work Kevin was particularly interested in the experience of domestic violence on adolescents. As well as working as a teacher Kevin has been designed and delivered training in Responding to Domestic Violence, Working with Teenagers, Working with Children, and in Loss and Grief
